The May Manton Fashions

THE guimpe dress is always a becoming one for the younger girls, consequently it is always in demand. Here is a quite new one. The guimpe is really a plain blouse and dress itself is slipped on over the head and confined at the waist by means of a belt that is passed through openings. It is a very simple garment to make, a very simple garment for the laundress to handle and at the same time it is an exceedingly smart one. In the picture the dress is made of striped galatee, and the blouse is made of white batiste. The belt is of plain white galatee finished with a buckle, but there are numerous materials that could be used for such a frock. Linen, galatee and cotton voile are especially desirable, and if something still more dressy is wanted, pongee, white or colored, could be used for the dress with crepe de chine for the guimpe. Cotton galatee is comparatively a new material and a most satisfactory one; exceedingly handsome and in every way adapted to such a model. If liked, the neck opening and the armholes may be cut square in place of round, and a leather belt always can be substituted for the one of material; or, in place of the belt could be worn a little girlish ribbon. For the dressy guimpe, a white and a pink or a white and a blue, would be charming for the dress with white voile for the blouse and a belt of white patent leather. For the dress, that would be both smart and serviceable and dressy enough for any simple occasion, rose colored pongee would be charming with the guimpe of white voile or white cotton crepe. For the 12 year old also will be needed 3½ yards of material 36 or 44 inches wide for the dress; 1½ yards 36, 1½ yards 44 for the blouse. The pattern 2936 is cut in sizes for girls from 8 to 12 years of age. No. 2936—(White, Batiste, Linen and Added Seam Allowance). Girl's Dress, 8 to 12 years.

A Fairy Story.

(From the Indianapolis Star.)
"But, mother, I do not love Count de Nutt and therefore do not wish to marry him," said Alice, the millionaire's daughter.
"Hush up, you silly child," said her mother, fondly. "It's all arranged. Your father gives him a million in cash and you get the title. Believe your mother, it is all for the best. After you are married you will realize it and will be perfectly happy."
And Alice, being a dutiful child, did as her mother said.
And after the marriage she realized that her mother had spoken the truth and was perfectly happy.
And Alice and the count lived happily ever after.

It's the Season of Coats, but With American Women, Who Make One Coat Cover Several Frocks, the Selection of the Frocks Is Even More Important.

Copyright, 1916 by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York Evening World.)
Coats play a very important part in woman's wardrobe this year. It is what one might call a season of coats. As a matter of fact, however, the many frocks required for wear under the coat are quite as important in the seasonable attire. In Europe, the costume, consisting of a dress with a long smart coat, specially made for wear over it, has always been greatly used, but it is only recently that it has attained general favor in America. And even now the separate coat is selected with an eye to its suitability for wear over various frocks. This winter chiffon and silk have taken the lead in dress fabrics for afternoon occasions, but they are usually combined with a certain amount of velvet or fur to lend a suggestion of substantiality and warmth. Many women, however, have an idea that chiffon is an expensive luxury, when, in spite of appearance, it makes the most durable of frocks. Some of the lovely tete de negre, taupe and deep blue shades are good for afternoon wear; also, if light colors are becoming, a deep rose color, something on the order of a mustard shade, or a Bordeaux is excellent for a reception frock.

As chiffon will continue its popularity into the warm months, the selection of it now for one's new frock makes the expenditure more gracious, as with careful wear its use may be extended and still follow fashion's dictate. I am showing an attractive design which, as the left-hand model portrays it, might be developed of chiffon in combination with lace and creative use of plain and plaid silk. Brick red would be very pretty with a plaid of the same color and green and dull blue, the tassels being of the red.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Fashion Editor:
I am making for myself a spring suit of woolen striped material and would like your advice about whether a thin interlining would be proper, and if so what material would you suggest for it? Also will you tell me if a brick red taffeta dress would be too gay for a woman thirty-eight years old?
Since your material is woolen, it should not need an interlining, if lined with a Skinner's satin which is heavier than other satins. However, a thin lawn or cambric could be used if your goods is very loose woven or you have other reasons for it, a thin lawn or cambric interlining could be used. A red taffeta would be suitable providing your general mode of dressing justifies it. If it is to be one of perhaps two spring dresses, I would advise another color. Bronze brown would not be so striking or conspicuous.
Dear Fashion Editor:
Will you please tell me if the kimono sleeve is to be worn this summer. I am starting my summer dresses and don't want to go wrong. What width should the skirt of a white lawn dress be and how wide a hem? Many thanks. MRS. G. T.
The kimono sleeve will be worn some, but mostly in chiffon or lace dresses. The type of sleeve shown in my sketch to-day is a good one. Four and a half yards would be good.

width for a tub dress, and a six-inch hem.
Dear Fashion Editor:
Should a woman of fifty wear white gloves to a dance at which she is a looker-on? If so, could she wear a half?
If it is a strictly formal dance it would be more dignified to wear gloves, though they have been treated with some neglect of late. A hat should not be worn.
